

Nigel Grimshaw

>> Managing Editor

This month: Lexmoto

Adrenaline 125

Other bikes ridden: 1977

Mobylette V50 Miles ridden: 50

‘It’ll do me just fine as a first bike’

LEARNING TO RIDE, in 2015, is a bothersome business. There’s a theory test which costs money (WCM); there’s the CBT (WCM); there’s the training (WCM) and then there are the riding tests (WCM). And that’s before you calculate the kit and the bike.

Thank goodness then for Lexmoto who are currently selling out of stock (p9), and with good reason.

From the novice seat (which is my seat) the Adrenaline 125 is a nice thing. Well built, nicely detailed, something to be proud of when it comes to buying your first new bike. Custom sticker packs mean you can customise and there’s even a gear position indicator nestled between the gauges. Which, in truth, are a bit Fisher Price - but certainly no deal-breaker.

£1499.00 gets you on an Adrenaline, less if you trawl the internet. It’ll do me just fine as a ‘first’ bike.